

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)

CSR is not just another check in the box, it is all of us making a commitment of purposeful initiatives and endeavors for the benefit of our community. CSR is a corporate initiative that surges throughout an organization, broadcasting a public statement to your customers, stockholders, employees, and to your neighbors. A statement that says we are investing in our community's future. Together.

Ending the Biggest Issues

One of the most prominent issues within our world today that every city, state, and country faces is child sex trafficking.

Those three words often cause the reflex of averting eyes and shuffling papers. It is not a permissible topic in the corporate world, and neither is it addressed even when the facts present themselves front and center.

Yet the tactic of evasion does not make the problem go away. It makes it compound and grow, like any problem would.

In fact, by staying silent on child sex trafficking, it is almost even helping traffickers by keeping their work hushed and unhindered.

At PACT, we do not accept this silence.

Corporate Action Items

PACT has redefined how to effectively stop child trafficking by creating an interactive online training program. This course is developed by students for students who are empowered by its advocacy of safety through education.

#1 Get Trained to Spread Awareness

One step to improving your company's awareness is by registering your employees! Raise awareness by starting education within your own company!

#2 Sponsor a School

You can invest in the protection of students in schools around the country by sponsoring a school and paying $5 per student to take the PACT Student Training Program. Let's promote prevention of child trafficking together!

As a Corporate Sponsor, you get to see the real impact!

Through the PACT program, each student registers, goes through the one-hour pass/fail program, and receives a certification. As a sponsor, you will receive a monthly report of the number of students who have taken the program, and receive feedback on how that course was important to them!
